

DIVISION OF DISTANCE LEARNING

Students many times cannot come to an ASU-Beebe campus to take courses in person. Therefore, courses offered through the Division of Distance Learning make a quality education accessible. ASU-Beebe offers courses using two modes of technology - On-line courses and Interactive Video Courses.

On-line Classes

The coursework for on-line courses can be completed through interactions on ASU-Beebe's WebCT server. Students do not have to report to an ASU-Beebe campus and are given the flexibility of working on coursework outside of the traditional on-campus time schedule.

Earning a Degree On-line

Students can take enough courses on-line to complete an Associate of Arts Degree in Liberal Arts. However, some students may not find electives in their chosen field of study. It is also possible to earn enough courses on-line to satisfy requirements for the Associate of General Education Degree or a Certificate of General Studies. Consult an academic advisor within your chosen field of study to determine whether enough on-line course offerings exist for you.

Hardware & Software

On-line courses require heavily upon technology. Therefore, you will need to consult the Distance Learning website to make sure that you have sufficient computer hardware and software to complete on-line coursework.

Technical Support

The Division of Distance Learning offers technical support for on-line students during expanded hours throughout the academic year. Technical Support can be reached by calling (501)882-4409 or by emailing webctadmin@asub.edu. Please consult the Distance Learning website for details.

Test Proctoring

ASU-Beebe requires of each instructor that at least one exam be proctored. Although proctoring is offered on the ASU-Beebe and ASU-Heber Springs campus locations, students may arrange to be proctored anywhere. Please see the Distance Learning website for the complete policy.

Website

For an up-to-date description of on-line courses, please visit the Distance Learning website at <http://dlweb.asub.edu>.

Interactive Video Classes

ASU-Beebe also offers classes via two-way Interactive Video. Offerings vary by semester. Please consult the Office of Distance Learning for more information.